A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Claim Objections Claim 5 is objected to because of the following informalities: "the certifying unit" should read as "the certificating unit" or vice versa. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000.

Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 5-7 and 13-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Howard et al., (U.S. Patent No. 6,584,505 and Howard hereinafter).

Regarding claim 1, Howard discloses a service unit connectable to a certificating unit and at least one terminal unit, said service unit comprising:

a transmitting device transmitting common certificate information in common with a plurality of services, when the terminal unit of a user accesses a particular service of the plurality of services, to the certificating unit which manages the common certificate information corresponding to service information of available services that the user can access, without requiring identification information or password information issued by the services (Col. 5, lines 44-63);

a service utilizing device receiving the service information of the available services from the certifying unit and providing the terminal unit of the user with display data for displaying a screen including a display region corresponding to the service information received from the certifying unit (Col. 7, lines 44-66); and a storing device storing the common certificate information and the identification information and the password information for the particular service (Col. 3, lines 34-61).

Regarding claims 6-7 and 13, Howard discloses a certifying method comprising:

registering common certificate information in common with a plurality of services that is linked to service identification information of an available service that a user can access, without requiring management of identification information and password information issued by the available service, and issuing the common certificate information for the user (Col. 5, lines 44-63);

receiving the common certificate information of the user from a service unit of the available service (Col. 7, lines 11-34); and permitting the service unit to provide the available service to the user when the received certificate information is linked to the service identification information of the particular service (Col. 7, lines 11-66).

Regarding claim 14, Howard discloses wherein said registering device adds other service identification information of a newly available service for the user to the common certificate information, when a second service unit of the newly available service requests that the newly available service be certified by the common certificate information (Col. 5, lines 44-67 and Col. 7, lines 11-34).

Regarding claim 15, Howard discloses wherein said permitting device, in response to a request from the first service unit of the particular service to said certifying unit for the available services corresponding to the common certificate information, obtains complete service identification information of the available services linked to the common certificate information of the user, and returns the complete service identification information to the first service unit (Col. 6, lines 63-67 and Col. 7, lines 1-34).

Regarding claim 16, Howard discloses further comprising an invalidating device invalidating service identification information of a selected service, when a third service unit of the selected service requests invalidation (Col. 7, lines 11-34 and Col. 8, lines 1-7).
